Toledo Scale Family Knows Itself Well Through Genealogy

Who was your great grandfather? A lot of people can probably answer that question, and virtually everyone knows who his grandfather is, but Toledo Scale member David Read and his wife, Helen, can trace David's family back 13 generations.

Helen, who used to work at Toledo Scale, became interested in genealogy after first becoming acquainted with it during high school. Genealogy is the study of family pedigrees and ancestral history.

For the past 16 years, she has worked on the family histories of her family and David's. While her own family only recently immigrated to America (a few generations ago), she traced David's family back 13 generations to when his ancestors first landed in America in 1630, 146 years before the birth of the nation.

"We have photographs, newspaper clippings, documents, letters, and other things tracing family history," Helen said. These items had been gathered from other relatives, official records, and newspaper files.

David's family came to Ohio in 1816, and his great grandfather edited a newspaper in Hudson. His grandfather came to Toledo in the 1880's. He was a lawyer who owned one of the prominent homes in Toledo at that time. Later, he moved to Cuba, retired, and died in Tampa, Fla.

David's father, John, met his British wife in Cuba and returned to Toledo in 1922, where he went to work at Toledo Scale. David's family has worked at a variety of occupations, including innkeepers, merchants, journalists, teachers, and doctors.

During the Civil War, Dr. Albert Read and Matthew Read discovered that more wounded soldiers were dying of malnutrition than their wounds. They set up a program in hospitals throughout the north to ordinance prohibiting allowing pigs to run free in the city streets during the summer. "Until we read that, we never realized how agricultural Toledo was in the past."

Helen is a member of the Northwestern Ohio Genealogical Society and the Ohio Genealogical Society and she is proud of her activities for the past several years. She has donated copies of the Read family history to several libraries in Ohio.

Also, she noted that since the popularity of the book and television program, Roots, genealogy has become increasingly popular. "It's a facinating pasttime," she said, "the people who get interested in it now are in for a lot of fun."

"Thing Board" holds many interesting keepsakes and collectors items of Mrs. David J. Read, 5711 Vail Ave., Toledo, Ohio. Some items are not too unusual, but all are odd or old.

Keepsakes, Collectibles Can Be Displayed Effectively on 'Thing Board'

By MRS. DAVID J. READ, Toledo, Ohio

Years ago my collection of miscellaneous treasures outgrew the drawer they were in so I displayed them on a "Thing Board". This is of course, very similar to the "Junque Board" that was in the TST a short while back, but much smaller items.

My first frame was an 8x10 elderly. I am sorry-I did not scout around for another old frame when my collection grew. It is on my "Someday" list though.

When several people saw my first Thing Board, they donated their treasures to me, but most items are from the family.

My present frame is 18 x 22. I covered the backing with a coarse woven beige linen. Most items are sewn on with invisible nylon thread. I sewed through the backing and over the item and back through the board several times. This takes a strong needle.

The silver snuff box in the center belonged to my husband's great-grandfather (It is engraved). The nails were from a home built in the early 1800's on the Western Reserve by the Read family. The scissors were my great-grandmothers and could have been brought from Germany when they immigrated.

The pocket watch has ruby—colored stones with the numbers gilded on and tiny flowers on the porcelain-type face. It is very delicate but the case is spoiled. Corkscrews are not too unusual, but this one is a bit odd!

And so it goes—even if we do not know the exact owner, the item is either odd or old.

My Gifts From God

By LESTER E. LOACH

Years ago the Lord gave me the breath of life;
And, after infancy and childhood,
He gave me my wife,
An angel from heaven with a Godly soul,
For she alone helped me to reach my goal.
She blessed me four times, ~~two~~ three girls and ~~one~~ boy.
Now we have grandchildren for whom to buy toys.
I've received many blessings from the Lord up above,
For, you see, I have always had someone to love.

DEAD END OF SELMA DR. MARKED BY BARRIER, AFTER ACCIDENT
Clyde Herzig, 4, of 5120 Selma Dr., views 8-foot drainage ditch

Barrier Built To Mark Ditch After 2 Are Hurt

Accident Is Second In About Year Attributed To Lack Of Signs

A 3-post barrier was erected hastily this morning at the ditch across Selma Dr., Wernerts Corners, where two youths were injured last night as they rode a motorbike into the road cut unmarked by warning signs.

Hurt were the driver, Orin Dent, 15, of 5704 Home Lane, and Edward Hunt, 16, of 3758 McGregor Lane. They received first aid from the Trilby rescue squad, and were taken to Toledo Hospital by Bunting Ambulance Service.

Condition Serious

Hospital attendants today listed Edward's condition as serious.

Unaware of the ditch, the youths said they were going rather fast when they ran off the end of a recently paved strip of Selma, over a few feet of sod and struck the opposite side of the 3-foot deep ditch. It was the second accident in about a year which neighbors attributed to the lack of warning signs.

Erect 3-Post Barrier

Since the street was opened more than seven years ago, it has been without warning signs, neighborhood residents said. Officials, notified of the latest accident, erected a 3-post barrier this morning.

In the previous accident, witnesses recalled, a car ran off the dead end of Selma on the opposite side of the ditch, and rammed a pile of dirt which had been left there.

EVERY BUNNY KNOWS THE NEXT HOLIDAY

Andrew Michael Hunt seems to know what the coming weekend holds, as he shows by snuggling up with what might very well be the Easter bunny. The 2½-year-old boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerold Hunt, Sylvania, was at a Franklin Park Mall pet shop the other day long enough to get acquainted with a potential friend.

CHILL WINDS and icy water still are with us, and it means the ship-watching season at the Port of Toledo hasn't arrived yet. But Frank Hunt and his daughter, Barbara, 8, provide a reminder that the St. Lawrence Seaway opening is just around the corner as they peer at the ships tied up at the port for the winter.

Knitting skills lead to colorful creations

Special to The Daily Oakland Press

When Barb DeVilbiss applies both her right brain and left brain, she knits the best of both worlds into colorful handcrafted fashions.

"I buy a lot of my yarns over the Internet," DeVilbiss said. "I love to use Australian products, as Australia is known for its fine yarn and has some of the best fibers."

Each of DeVilbiss' creations bears a tag detailing content, as well as garment care, as required by law. Legal issues concern a large part of today's knitting industry, where copyrights for patterns play a key role.

"Legally, a pattern is required to be 30 percent different from a designer's pattern," DeVilbiss said. "There are patterns available in the public domain, but copyright in knitting is increasingly the hot issue."

DeVilbiss has also studied a technique called felting and creates a variety of items with it, including slippers and dog coats. Felting results from knitting an oversized item, then shrinking it in hot water with mild soap to fashion the matted-like material.

DeVilbiss teaches a children's knitting class that incorporates historical knowledge with technique. Her personal interest in history is as important to her as her search for authenticity in design.

"At one time, only men were 'allowed' to knit," DeVilbiss said.

"Some of the most productive knitting occurred when yarn was scarce. Irish women knit while walking places and, in the Shetland Islands, everyone knit during the fishing off-season, resulting in their famous heavy, warm sweaters."
